

ENCORE.

The singer stood in a blaze of light,
And fronted the flowery throng.
Her lips apart with her greeting smile,
Her soul soared out in her song.
Now hovering like an imprisoned bird
With its plannings thrilling high,
Then faintly sweet, as the reapers hear
A lark afar in the sky.

And forth like thunder the praises broke,
And the singer bowed and smiled,
And flowers fell fast in a sudden storm
But she was not to be wiled.
"Shall I throw my gifts to this fickle throng?"
She thought with a bitter sigh.
"What do they care for my simple song?"
As she courtesied a glad good by.

The singer sat in her lonely room,
As the stars peeped out of the haze,
And her voice poured forth in its sweetest gush.
Through none were beside to praise—
Till she saw a form to her window creep
And crouch by its misty pane—
An old dame wept at the wondrous song
That gave back her youth again!

The singer stirred not, nor made a sign,
That she saw where the listener stood.
But once and again she raised her voice
And poured out its golden flood,
And only ceased when the minister bells
Shook out their evening clang—
Then one thanked God for the song she heard,
And one for the song she sang.

TEMPE'S ROLL OF HONOR.

Names of the Men Who Subscribed Stock in the New Hotel.

The people of Tempe wanted a hotel and did not have time to wait for an outsider to come in and build it. Subscriptions were taken up and so numerous were the inhabitants in the matter of the hotel that the list looks like a business directory of the town. The following is a list of the subscribers:

TEMPE.

Miss Morse, daughter of Rile Morse of Mesa, returned from the deaf and dumb institute in New Mexico and got off the train yesterday morning.

Harry Deniston packed his burros and started for the mountains yesterday morning.

Mrs. Charles Taylor went to Phoenix yesterday on the early morning train. The races that were to come off on the race tracks, failed to materialize on account of one of the owners losing confidence in his horse.

The G. A. R. post had a meeting yesterday afternoon and appointed a committee to act in connection with the ex-confederates to give a barbecue. The war with Spain has made our nation one, and the boys of the line and grey can touch elbows and march along like brothers.

The social dance at the Odd Fellows' hall was a very enjoyable affair. The ice cream social for the Methodist church, south, was socially a success, and the ice cream was excellent, although financially it was not very successful.

MESA.

Frank Hawley and Bert Pitt who came from Florida about a year ago, left Friday morning for their old home. They will make the return journey on bicycles.

C. W. Miller of the Tempe News came up from Tempe yesterday morning.
C. T. Hayden and his chief clerk, Mr. Moore, came up to spend the day yesterday.

Walter Wilbur made a flying trip to Tempe on Friday night.
Quite a number of Mesa's young people attended the dance given at I. O. O. F. at Tempe on Friday night. All report a happy time.

A large delegation of Lehi people came up to attend the funeral of Mayor David LeBaron and George Whill.
The expressmen, Ellsworth Bros., had an exciting and serious runaway yesterday morning. Will Ellsworth left his team standing for a moment to help his brother across the railroad track, when his own team started and succeeded in running away. The result must have been rather disastrous as Will now rides in a new wagon and his team makes a fine appearance in their new harness.

D. P. Jones and Harvey Harper were up from Lehi yesterday for the day.
The board of school trustees of Lehi met and decided to retain all of the old teachers: Miss McKenzie, principal; Miss Schwarz, intermediate, and Mrs. Northcutt, primary.
Johnson & Guthrie, lessees of the Mesa opera house, are making extensive repairs on their building. They are unfurling in their efforts to make the resort comfortable and attractive to its patrons.

Extensive shipments of fresh fruit are being made daily to all parts of the territory. The fruit interest of Mesa is forging to the front and bids fair to be one of its leading industries.
Those registered at the Kimball house are: J. J. Maloney, Globe; C. L. Hockett and son, Bockley, Phoenix; P. G. Cohn, Phoenix; D. G. Vaughn, W. A. Hall, California.
Those registered at the Alhambra are: R. J. Johnson, P. G. Cohn, M. J. Galpin, J. W. Branshall, Phoenix; W. Buckhorn, Gallup, N. M.; J. J. Maloney, Globe.

INDIANS CAPTURE A SAFE.

Disgust of Some Apaches With $7,000 in Their Possession.

"The Apache Indians had a hard nut to crack when they got their hands on the paymaster's safe," said the ex-servant of cavalry who was asked about his experiences in Arizona. "On this particular trip I was detailed with six men to escort him. He and his clerk rode in an ambulance drawn by mules, and of course the escort were mounted. We were in camp one night between two forts when we were jumped by at least 100 Indians. They killed two men before we got out, and of course the ambulance was left in their hands."

"The paymaster's safe contained about $7,000 in greenbacks. It weighed something like 400 pounds and worked with a combination. None of the redskins had ever examined one at close quarters before, but they all knew what it was hauled about from 1750 to 1800, and of course they were anxious to get hold of the money. They first pounded off the knob with stones, thinking the door could then be pried open. It was a failure, of course, and then they tried their tomahawks on the chilled steel, hoping to cut a hole in it. They had seen iron softened by fire, and the third move was to give that safe a three hours' roasting. Luckily for Uncle Sam it was fire-proof. They threw big rocks upon it while it was still hot and it was dented and there, but they were as far from the money as ever. After working away for a night and a day the safe was dragged up the side of a mountain and tumbled over a precipice 200 feet high. They expected to see it burst open, but the only damage done was to break one of the wheels off. It was left lying where it fell for three or four days and the gang then returned and carried it to the river and let it soak for a whole week. It was thought that this would soften it up, and great was their chagrin when they found that then they tried gun powder, but knowing nothing of blasting they brought about an explosion which burned half a dozen warriors and left the safe as good as ever."

The Indians were fooling with that strong box for a month or more. They roasted it again and they gave it and other fall, and no burglars ever worked harder to get at the long green. They failed to get at the inside, however, and in disgust they tumbled it into a deep ravine and left it. It was fourteen months later that the money and the safe were found. A guard was sent for it and we found it lying in the bed of a creek with a great pile of driftwood piled around it. It was a lonesome looking old safe, as you may suppose, and nobody had the slightest hope that the money had escaped fire and water. When we got it to the fort and blew off the door we found the $7,000 as snug as you please. Some of the bills were a little tender from the heat and some had grown moldy from the water, but Uncle Sam redeemed every dollar and the paymaster was made happy again. When the Apaches heard of our getting the money one of them, who had worked hardest on the safe, growled at me: "White man some fool, Indian more fool, and iron box great big damn fool!"—New York Sun.

HIS FABLE MADE A HIT.

But Women Didn't Know What It Meant and Neither Did the Writer.

"If you want to establish a reputation," chuckled a professional scribbler at a little Bohemian symposium the other night, "you'll find ambiguity the best trick in trade in the world. Two or three years ago I was asked to contribute an article to a woman's edition of a newspaper published in a city not a thousand miles from here, and wrote a paper for it that I called simply 'A Fable.' I began it something like this: 'Once upon a time a tree and a vine became tired of the forest arcade in which they lived and decided to make an adventure upon the world.' Then I went on to describe in an entirely haphazard fashion, how the tree and the vine perambulated through the universe, meeting this person and that, and finally wound up by bringing them back to the forest. The thing concluded with this brilliant paragraph: 'Yes, little vine,' said the tree, 'we have learned our lesson; the art of life is the life of art.' What does it mean, did you say? Blamed if I know. But I'll tell you one thing, the 'Fable' was the hit of the woman's edition. It was praised by all the gentle addresses as the sweetest, truest thing they had ever read in their lives, and one charming lady remarked that she never dreamed that I was capable of turning out such a subtle and exquisite bit of fancy. Moreover, it was widely copied and everywhere admired. As far as I have been able to ascertain, not a single human being ever had sufficient moral courage to own up that he didn't know what the dickens I was driving at. The nearest approach to it was a lady I met one night at reception. She tried to draw me out diplomatically and Iure me into an explanation, but I was too wary for her. 'I should have dwelt a little more strongly on the faculty of anticipation,' I said, 'but, of course, you see the connection.' 'Oh,' she replied, 'looking alarmed, and immediately changed the subject.'—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
